BSA Construction

BSA Construction is a leading firm in Boston's high-end custom restorations and renovations. Establishing their business in Boston more than twenty years ago has led to numerous incredibly rewarding transformations of brownstones and luxury condominiums, paired with an intricate knowledge and ability to work successfully throughout the city. Using their city work as a foundation and framework for excellence, they've expanded to towns and communities surrounding downtown and Boston's North Shore.

With a dedicated team committed to a collaborative vision, BSA Construction brings value to each project and creates an unmatched experience for their clients and families.

BSA Construction serves Greater Boston and Boston's North Shore and specializes in both custom building and ongoing estate care.

What motivates you?

We live for collaborative projects working with a dedicated design team to realize our clients' dreams. It's incredibly rewarding to get feedback from clients one month, one year, and even several years later still enjoying their vision and the individualized craftsmanship that made it their own.

How do you describe your style?

Our style is to follow our clients' vision using our uniquely combined backgrounds in design, art, and architecture to refine the vast number of details in each project. Working with both the design team and owners, our goal is delivering a one-of-a-kind home that surpasses our clients' expectations that we can all be proud of.

What was a proud moment:

We recently finished a complex multifaceted restoration of an oceanfront estate on Boston's North Shore, originally designed by Marion Sims Wyeth. Upon finishing the project, our client, a world-renowned commercial architect, installed a marble cornerstone on the home listing BSA Construction alongside their names, respectively. It was an incredible honor at the completion of a detailed project. Finishing all of our projects and making lifelong relationships with our clients keeps us motivated.
